That the service was packed with employes in the interests of the individual is indicated by the fact at the request of the postmaster general | that the number of appointments in the month of classification was more than twice as great as for the preceding four months. "Regarding unskilled laborers, which have not been subject to classification, it is proper to say that there has been much consideration of this question on the part of the Civil-service Commission and the department and many conferences have been had on this subject. draft of a bill, with marginal notes, written by the late King Alexander, has been found in the palace. It provided for the proclamation of Queen Draga's brother as heir to the throne. This, the dispatch adds, is held by the conspirators to be complete justificaion for their action.

Russia's Attitude.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 13.-In official circles here it is stated that none of the powers is inclined to raise difficulties in recognizing the sovereign the Servian Parliament elects, whose accession is calculated to end a dangerous condition, which might brim, yacht shape, in English split straw lead to anarchy. An official note giving the tragic events at Belgrade have occasioned profound emotion in Russia, where there is the keenest interest in everything affecting the destinies of the Servian people. All the blood that has been shed can only awaken in Russia a feeling of compassion, which in the present instance, is increased by the fact that the King and Queen of a friendly state have fallen victims of a violent death, and that the Obrenovitch dynasty, so closely bound up in the history of Servia, is now extinct. The most fervent desire prevails in Russia that Servia, after this fearful crisis, may be able to pursue peacefully the course of her national life in the direction which the patriotism of the Servian people and a proper conception of their supreme interests will indicate."

CRITICISED BY COCKRAN

CHAMBERLAIN'S SCHEME INDICTED BY THE NEW YORKER,

Who Spoke to Irish M. P.'s in the Dining Room of the British House of Commons.

LONDON, June 13 .- The deserted corridors of the House of Commons rang tonight with the strains of "The Wearing of the Green," when the Irish party took possession of Parliament with a dinner in upon them for violating Judge Keller's honor of W. Bourke Cockran, of New York. John Redmond occupied the chair and all the leading Nationalists were present to hear Mr. Cockran make an impas sloned speech, proposing Ireland's future prosperity. This speech developed into one of the strongest indictments of Coloby Coxe Brothers, hair-cloth manufactur- nial Secretary Chamberlain's preferential programme delivered on this side of the Atlantic. The speaker, Mr. Cockran, then went on to denounce the suggested change in British fiscal policy, which he declared was intended "to make everybody rich by making the country poor." He ridiculed the argument that the United States made Great Britain the dumping ground for its surplus goods and dissected the recent protectionist speeches in Parliament, based on American prosperity, declaring that the very essence of the relations between states is that none of them is improved. Mr. Cockran traced the influence of the United States Supreme Court in settling interstate commerce problems with the deduction that "in the last analysis Mr. Chamberlain's scheme merely amounted to the declaration that some similar institution to the Supreme Court of the United States must be created and that either the colonists must surrender their independence to England or England surrender hers to the colonies. There has never been any suggestion so fatal to the integrity of the empire. The essence of protection is to do business at a loss and to remedy it by taxation and legislation. When a man discovers a thin spot in his hair and glimpses a white disc plainly through it he feels a pang. Suddenly he realizes that grim old age is creeping on. He watches the place a few days and hangs over his mirror like a debutante. Then he arranges a compromise with Father Time. The man goes forth to his barber shop and reads the labels on the bottles and the pictures of the seven Sutherland Sisters have a new meaning for him. Henceforth the apothecaries have a

Barrels and barrels of hair restorers are manufactured every day for the bald heads. In the preferred list of merchants and manufacturers in the New York Commercial is named one firm that does a large share of the business. This firm probably makes one thousand barrels of hair restorer at their New York factory every year. They have other factories. Not a pint of this fluid bears the firm's name. They simply fill the formulas of the inventor. It goes before the public under the Hair restorers and washes contain alcohol, bay rum, quinine, salicylic acid and witch hazel in some proportion as the base for the preparation. Drug stores prepare quantities in individual prescriptions. Altogether, the manufacture of hair restorers in the United States reaches twenty thousand barrels annually. And this vast quantity of fluid is used by the bald-headed man and the man who fears that he will be a bald-headed man. Then there is the hair destroyer-liquid.

exactly the same stuff as the hair restorer. ; or or cobbler, and possibly, while waiting It removes the hair, but does not destroy than ever before; the only place where it declines to operate in this manner is on a man's head. It will bring out a new crop of hair in his ears, on his chest, or even in his nose, but if he rubs the fatal hair destroyer on that thin spot on his head expecting any boomerang results, he says farewell to the last three and gets a skull cap. Making, selling and using hair restor-ers form a profitable industry.
